Guilty: Police conduct investigator fined after unlawfully obtaining sensitive case details

A lead IOPC investigator sent an email to his private Hotmail account containing restricted, sensitive information. This included recordings of 999 calls which had been referred to the IOPC and were related to an incident which resulted in death.

Air France and KLM hit by third-party data breach

The incident, which reportedly affected customer data belonging to KLM, originated from a security compromise involving an external service provider. Both airlines, which operate under the Air France-KLM holding group, are now investigating the breach and its potential impact.

Google suffers data breach in ongoing Salesforce data theft attacks

As organisations embed AI deeper into their operations, it’s time to ask the tough questions around what kind of data we’re feeding into AI, who has access to AI outputs, and if there’s a breach – what processes we have in place to respond quickly and meet GDPR’s reporting timelines.
